MR. REYNOLDS DIES IN INSTANT

Newport News Man
Drops Dead in Manhattan Club.

ELKS SEND BODY TO UNDERTAKER'S

Mr. Bruce Reynolds, of Newport News, Wires He Will Come Up This Morning—Was Long a Resident of Richmond, His Father's Home.

Mr. Robert N. Reynolds, well-known in Richmond where he once lived, but of late a resident of Newport News, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at two o'clock in the parlor of the Manhattan Social Club, No. 412 East Broad Street. Congestion of the lungs was the cause of death as assigned by Coroner W. J. Taylor, who viewed the body immediately after death.

The deceased, who had only been in Richmond for a few days, visiting friends and relatives, was a personal friend of Mr. Evenson, of the Manhattan Club and presumably went there to visit him yesterday. He spoke to several gentlemen as he entered the parlors of the club and walked to the ice cooler in the corner of the room. He drank a glass of water and started out of the door leading into the hall. He was seen to throw up his hands suddenly and totter.

Mr. J. J. Mulcaire, in the act of entering the room was right at the side of Mr. Reynolds when he staggered, and caught him. Several gentlemen who were near assisted the man to a chair, where he was seated. It was thought that he had fainted and remedies to revive him were being suggested when he was seen to gasp. In two minutes he was dead. Dr. Leonard and Dr. Foster were in the room at the time, but they could do nothing.

Mr. Evenson notified Coroner Taylor at once, but before this he had summoned the ambulance. Later he telephoned to the police station.

Mr. Reynolds was a member of the Penetevant Order of Elks, and belonged to the Newport News Lodge. Mr. Archie Burke, secretary of the Richmond Lodge, was at once notified by Mr. Evenson, who is also an Elk, and the body was removed to Kain's undertaking establishment where it was prepared for burial.

The Elks took charge of the remains and will probably conduct the funeral, which will likely take place here, as Mr. Robert Reynolds, father of the deceased is buried here as well as other relatives.

Mr. Bruce Reynolds, a prominent August of Newport News, brother of the dead man, was communicated with yesterday, and telegraphed Mr. Burke last night that he would be here this morning.

Mr. Robert Reynolds was very well-known in the city. He had lived here for years and was popular in all secret orders. For twenty-five years he had worked for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad and at one time was in the freight office here. Of recent years he has been assistant freight manager for the road in Newport News.

(By Associated Press.)

FORT WILLIAM, ONT., May 27.—The Ogilvie Company's grain elevator here started to slide into the river during the night, and it is considered impossible to save it. Besides the saloons, all barber shops, bowling alleys, billiard halls, theatres, groceries, and, in fact, everything except hotels, drug stores and railroad and street-car lines was closed. Two free "sacred" concerts at the largest amusement park in Jefferson county were not molested, but none of the park employees were permitted to work.

The ball park was crowded with spectators when the game between Louisville and Toledo was called, but after half an inning had been played, the police arrested President Tebeau, of Louisville; President Grillo, of Toledo, and all players and employees. Although bond was promptly given, the park was ordered closed, and resumption of play was not permitted.

Wedding Dress Attracting Great Attention—Description of the

(By Associated Press.)

MADRID, May 27.—The first notable act of Princess Ena, of Battenberg, since her arrival in Spain to become the bride of King Alfonso XIII, has been to induce the King to pardon Ferdinand Llovera, who was condemned to death after an exciting trial. The dramatic circumstances under which pardon was given, as the condemned man was going to the gallows, attracts widespread attention, and further augments the popularity of Princess Ena.

Llovera was to be executed in the neighboring town of Badajoz, but the population solicited Princess Ena's intervention, and she spoke to the King, who consulted with his ministers, and after a cabinet council, the government resolved to grant the request, as it was the first petition the Princess had made in Spain. Thereupon the King issued a pardon, and a telegram announcing this fact reached the prison at Badajoz half an hour before the time set for the execution. The march to the scaffold was about to begin when a messenger brought word of the pardon.

There were remarkable scenes of rejoicing. The townspeople formed a procession and sang the praises of their queen-to-be. The people of Madrid also highly approved the Princess' humane intervention, and the newspapers comment upon the coming Queen's first act as being one of mercy.

Charmed With Princess.

The Pardo Palace was again the scene of royal ceremonies to-day. The ideal weather permitted the King and Queen to receive the military bishop celebrated a campaign mass. It was a pretty sight, with the brilliant uniforms of the soldiers forming a background for the royal pair. Princess Ena's interest in the Spanish uniforms led King Alfonso to summon six soldiers, representing the various arms of the service for his bride-elect's inspection of their arms and accoutrements. This was a notice of special satisfaction to the influential army element.

Later King Alfonso and Princess Ena went in an automobile to the picturesque forests of Ardo.

The cabinet ministers have had their share in the prevailing enthusiasm over Alfonso's fiancée. Premier Moret presented his official view while drinking a toast to the Princess. Addressing King Alfonso, the premier said: "Sir, you have brought us treasure. May it please God to make us worthily conserve it."

The Wedding Dress.

On one of Princess Ena's visits to Madrid, she was permitted to visit the gorgeous nuptial apartments that have been prepared in the Royal Palace and to try on the wedding dress made here. The wedding dress has attracted great interest in Spain, as it is truly a Spanish product, in fabric and finish, except for the wonderful Brussels lace which has been brought to adorn it. It was a fancy of the King and Queen Mother that the wedding dress should be made in Spain, and the Princess Ena graciously fell in with the patriotic sentiment. The dress is therefore one of the special presents from the King and is a marvel of elegance. The silk was manufactured from a special pattern in one of the large Spanish silk establishments. It was made up with all the artistic skill of the court dressmakers. The silk is heavily overlaid with wonderful silver embroidery with soft frills of the finest Brussels lace, said to have cost $50 a yard. The lace was publicly exhibited before being put on the dress, and excited the admiration and astonishment of the aristocratic ladies of Madrid. Orange blossoms are profusely used with the silver embroideries and lace, for the corsage, and even in dainty clusters along the train, which is four yards long. According to the Spanish traditions the

WHERE SPAIN'S ROYAL COUPLE WILL SOON MAKE THEIR HOME

LADY KNOCKS MAN DOWN WITH FIST

"Masher" Given Two Blows in the Face He Will Not Soon Forget.

NOSE BLOODY WHEN HE AROSE

Young Woman Sent Him Sprawling to Pavement of Government Street.

As a result of his inability to size them up, there is one masher somewhere in this city who is demonstrating a broken nose and a bloody eye for his audacity in approaching and addressing a respectable woman.

The few and far between pedestrians who were in the neighborhood of Capitol and Governor Streets last night just as the City Hall clock was pointing to 9:30 were startled to behold a female figure hand out a couple of pretty stiff blows, straight from the shoulder, into the bold countenance of a man within a yard of the owner of the fair hands. They stood aghast as the man fell to the sidewalk with a dull thud, while the woman hurriedly stepped away around the corner of Governor toward Broad Street.

The fellow was indeed down and out, and some one hastened to phone for the ambulance, only to find on his return that the victim of the woman's strength had arisen and was on his way west down Capitol, where he finally turned into the Square and was lost in the trees.

Knocked Him Down.

One of the bystanders who saw the incident as it occurred, stated that he noticed the man approach the woman and say something to her. She, as well as he could make out, having taken but casual notice of the meeting, was surprised by the man's behavior, but when he persisted in asking her name, she raised her right fist and let him have it with all her strength. The unknown was evidently athletic, for the man staggered, and instantly was the recipient of a second knockout lick, which felled him to the pavement.

Reference to the lady's bravery declared that the thing happened so suddenly and in such a short space of time that it took him entirely by surprise, and he could do nothing toward the identification of the woman, who, he says, was neatly dressed and was good looking. The man was attired in a flashy suit, and wore a flat brimmed straw hat, and was unknown to the observer.

Probably Cure Him.

The man was bleeding profusely from the nose as he passed westward from the scene of the encounter, that had proved his undoing. However, it is not thought that his wounds were of a serious nature, but they will probably cure him of any buttinsky propensity he may possess in the future.

The circumstances of the deed point to the fact that the man thought he was up against something else, and made his advances in an audacious manner to the fair one. He misread his reckoning, as he soon learned to his grief, and if he is a Richmond man, as he may not be, he may take the hint as a gentle reminder that Coney Island tricks cannot be tried here.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND WITH CORE AROUND NECK

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 27.—Under conditions that indicate murder, the body of a young woman was found to-day on the Bronx shore of the Harlem River. The body was neatly clad and around the neck was a tightly fastened noose or cord. An autopsy showed that death probably was not due to drowning, but the condition of the body, which had evidently been in the water for several weeks, was such as to make it impossible to determine the precise cause of death. The body was that of a woman about twenty-five years of age.

MAKE ATTEMPT TO OPEN OHIO MINES

Effort to Resume Work at Plum
Run and Other Points
To-day.

NO TROUBLE REORTED YET

(By Associated Press.)

STUBBSVILLE, OHIO, May 27.—By to-morrow, according to the company officials, fully 200 miners will be at work at Plum Run Mine and a number of them will be union miners. Where they came from no one knows, but it is certain they are not from the ranks of the local strikers.

Both sides buy at the company's store at Plum Run, and strikers and those who have taken their jobs, have mixed there without a hitch so far. Descriptions are anticipated from the ranks of the local strikers this week, and it is said by the middle of this week, when a full force is at work at Plum Run, other mines will be opened by using the strike-breakers from Plum Run for a nucleus, around which to gather others.

No Trouble Yet.

(By Associated Press.)

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 27.—According to a statement made here to-night by General Manager E. H. Willard, of the United States Coal Company, which operates the Plum Run mine, work will be resumed to-morrow and will continue indefinitely. More men are arriving at the mine every day, he said, and several hundred men will be at work by the middle of the week.

The operators still refuse to say what mine will be opened next, preparing to-morrow. No trouble has been reported from any locality, the operators say.

"We are going to follow out our general plan of opening the mines," said Mr. Hornokel, one of the members of the committee to-day. "We have made preparations to start several mines immediately. There has been no further talk of a conference at present."

The explosion came while the men were erecting a fire wall to stop a fire that had started from an unusually heavy blast. The mine was immediately flooded to prevent the fire from spreading further.

Startling Resemblance in Situation

French Revolution—Min-

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 27.—Dispatches received here concerning the review of troops after the celebration of the anniversary of the Emperor's coronation at Sebastopol to-day, say that eleven persons were killed, including five children, and that over a hundred persons were wounded. A number of dispatches also say that four arrests were made.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 23.—With breathless anxiety society awaits the government's response to the bold action of the lower house of Parliament Saturday, which, in censuring the ministry and demanding its retirement, was like a deliberate slap in the face and a direct challenge, which the government, though inclined to prefer its usual policy of temporization and compromise, can hardly avoid meeting.

Parliament has burned the bridge and virtually has taken the step which the French States General did when it transformed itself into a national convention. By flaunting the fundamental laws and practically declaring that it proposes to exercise full parliamentary rights with a responsible ministry, it has become in the eyes of the law a revolutionary body, and from that position there seems no relief.

Bloody Revolution.

The news of the action of the house came like an electric shock, the people generally being as greatly surprised as the bureaucracy at the promptness with which the whole government's policy was absolutely scorned. Both sides recognize the acuteness and seriousness of the moment, but panic is in the government, and not the popular camp.

Premier Goremykin went to Peterhof immediately after the adjournment of Saturday's session to confer with the Emperor and Sunday denoted agitated conferences between the ministerial leaders and the constitutional democratic chiefs are displaying calmness in the face of the crisis. They declare that having delivered their reply, they propose to go calmly ahead with the work before them, forbidding the government to take the initiative. The strength of their position lies in the conviction that the Russian nation, and especially the peasantry, who are sure to be discontented at the flat concerning the expropriation of land, is behind Parliament in its rejection of the government's policy as utterly unacceptable.

"The government, if it dares to fight," said M. Kokoshkine, one of the constitutional democratic members of the House, "can disperse the Parliament; but the victory of the bureaucracy would only be temporary. It would inevitably be followed shortly by a bloody revolution, which would not leave a stick of the present government standing. The Emperor must choose between a real constitutional government and a headless government, but probably of his head."

Terrorists Active.

The social democrats and social revolutionists are delighted at the turn of events, believing they furnish just the stimulus needed for the rising they are planning. The terrorists were quick to seize the opportunity for a series of blows in widely separated parts of the country. The news of which forms a prominent feature in this morning's newspapers, instead of the expected decree of amnesty. The attempts at Tiflis and Sebastopol are convincing indications of the determination of the campaign of assassination with full vigor.

The press to-day, almost without exception, is pessimistic, recognizing the extreme gravity of the situation the tempest which the denial of the right of forced appropriation of land will provoke among the peasantry. The Reich declared that the government's reasoning in this respect is false and fallacious, the appropriation of land standing practically on the same basis now as in 1881.

Professor Kareloff in a special article, says a parallel of the early stage of the French revolution is now complete. He invites the ministry to substitute for the 1906 events those of 1789 and then to consider whether they wish to continue their present course. The St. Petersburg, the Gorky, the Vostok, the others in sharpness of criticism, declaring that the government has proclaimed war on parliament.

Orders for the guard corps to go into camp at Krasnoye Selo, have been countermanded, and it is supposed they will be terminated.
